MESSAGE FROM EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
OLIVER PERCOVICH

One of the standout memories of Skateistan’s journey for me was back in 2008. We had just finished a skate session at the Mekroyan fountain (in Kabul where Skateistan sessions first ran) and the girls just held hands and started to dance around.

I couldn’t believe what I was seeing - it was a eureka moment! The penny dropped, and I realised at that moment that what we had begun couldn’t stop there. It couldn’t just be these little skateboard sessions in the street, or giving Afghan kids some skateboards or skateboard lessons - this had the ability to unite people from very different backgrounds. It gave me concrete proof that skateboarding is a great way of connecting people and bringing them together. I saw that this was a powerful model which needed to be expanded as fast as possible. There are things skateboarders can teach other people about being inclusive and not taking on society’s classifications. I always thought there was something there, but at that moment with those girls, it was right before my eyes.

The past 10 years have shown me the capacity of what ideas can grow into. I am proud of the whole team at Skateistan who have continuously pushed the organization forward. So much was done without a plan or resources at the beginning, but now that we do have the resources, the support, the plans and the team, we are determined to reach more children.

That inclusive aspect is so important to Skateistan, especially with our focus on providing opportunities for girls and children living with disabilities. The impact that being part of Skateistan can have in the lives of these children is so significant. Whether it’s the girls skating in Mazar-e-Sharif, which has the largest concentration of female skaters anywhere in the world, or a child living with a disability learning a new skate trick. Imagine how it makes them feel to fly around on a skateboard in a beautiful skatepark! It is opening their minds to what they can do in different areas of their lives and giving them confidence to do it. There are so many more children, especially girls and children living with disabilities, that need access to better quality education and fun in their lives.

In 2018, the year we celebrate our official 10th birthday, it’s not a question of whether or not we are going to do it, but how we can do it even better, to reach even more of these children. This snowball is rolling and now we want to turn it into an avalanche. Thank you for your support in 2017 and over the past 10 years of the Skateistan journey.

By the end of 2017, 51% of our students were girls. We surpassed our global gender goal of 50% girls for the second year in a row and were delighted to be nominated for the Beyond Sport 2017 Impact of the Year Award in recognition of our work on girls’ inclusion.

In order to meet this achievement for girls’ participation, we continued to create a female-first environment by employing female Educators, hosting girls-only classes and girls’ days, letting girls skate first at Outreach sessions, maintaining safe private facilities for girls’ participation, and by working with female role models from the community.

We also partnered with local organizations to ensure children living with disabilities could take part in our programs. For example, a partnership with the Swedish Committee for Afghanistan led to the inclusion of the deaf community in our programs in Mazar-e-Sharif. The teachers from the deaf school taught Afghan sign language to our Educators, which they used to provide Skate and Create lessons to deaf students. In Cambodia, we partnered with an organization called Krousar Thmey to engage with deaf children. Our staff in Cambodia also began learning Khmer sign language. In both Afghanistan and Cambodia, our students even invented the word for skateboarding in their respective sign language!

The quality of our programs is always paramount for us. In 2017, we invested in growing and up-skilling our international programs team, recruiting an International Programs Manager to lead training and curriculum design for our Skate Schools. Staff in Cambodia spent time with the team in South Africa and the Kabul and Mazar-e-Sharif Skate Schools hosted exchanges for Educators, allowing staff members to share knowledge and ideas. All our General Managers attended a training day on trauma-based care to ensure we can effectively provide care for children who have experienced trauma in their lives.

This year we restructured our Youth Leadership program from six months of activities to an ongoing program with new training milestones. The Homework Help activities that we began running in Johannesburg, in partnership with local university student volunteers, in 2016 continued, and were successful throughout 2017. Students reported greatly improved attitudes towards studying and doing well in school. We plan to implement these study activities as a new extension of the Back-to-School program in other locations in 2018.

For our team in Kabul, some of the biggest successes in 2017 came from the Back-to-School program. 37 students entered public primary school and 45 students graduated - the largest graduating class in the history of our program in Kabul. We added extra physical education classes including skateboarding, climbing, and other sports to the program’s regular curriculum, along with time for help with homework and reading in the library.

The Kabul team ran a student council as part of the Youth Leadership program, giving young people a chance to learn problem-solving and leadership skills. The council met for two hours every fortnight for a full academic semester and students on the council were responsible for representing their class to the educators. As a reward for their time and effort, the students received training as well as extra skate lessons and sessions.

In September we completed the Science and Innovation curriculum in the Skate and Create program, which included sessions on critical thinking, toy robotics and physics, clock-making, and knitting.

We also celebrated International Peace Day in Kabul, with an event for female students that was attended by more than 120 people. The students created a large mural of the dove of peace for the event.

In November, our educators and volunteers from Kabul visited the Mazar-e-Sharif Skate School. They took part in skate training and ran a small skateboard contest with Mazar-e-Sharif’s students. Three members of staff from Kabul also visited Mazar-e-Sharif in November to strengthen collaboration and knowledge sharing between the sites.
I am learning, skating and doing some other sports here at Skateistan. A year ago Fatima (Community Educator) came to our community and encouraged our families to let us come to Skateistan. It is a very fun place. I do a lot of sport, but skateboarding is my favorite. I feel like I am flying and I can do something special and important. Before my family thought that skateboarding is a male sport, but now they even can’t believe that their little girl can skate like others, even boys. They think that I am doing good at Skateistan! I love flying and I hope one day to become a pilot.
PROGRESS UPDATE 2017

Our Skate School in Mazar-e-Sharif reached full capacity in 2017, demonstrating how highly-valued our work is in the local community. A highlight of the year was our continued partnership with the Swedish Committee for Afghanistan which allowed us to extend our programs to the deaf community in Mazar-e-Sharif at the Skate School. These students followed the same Skate and Create curriculum as their peers, with Educators signing the curriculum for them. In particular, the lesson on emotions and expressions received positive feedback from the students, who reported afterwards that they did not feel they were ‘disabled’ but champions for the hearing-impaired community.

Our team in Mazar-e-Sharif provided cycling lessons to all 600 Skate and Create students as part of the life skills curriculum. Students really enjoyed the lessons, especially girls, who do not traditionally ride bicycles on the streets. Our team in Mazar-e-Sharif undertook a program of community engagement to explain the benefits of cycling for girls to the community and to get parental permission for the girls to take part.

We also offered extra sports classes as incentives for students to continue to join our programs. The Mazar-e-Sharif team set up football, basketball and climbing teams. Our female football team in Mazar-e-Sharif has participated in a number of competitions in the region and was officially registered by the Balkh Football Federation and the Balkh Olympic Committee.

My classmates from the Swedish Committee of Afghanistan came to Skateistan first and they told me about lessons and skateboarding, then I joined them. I do skateboarding and football at Skateistan. I feel brave when I am skateboarding. I love skateboarding and planting the flowers around the garden. My family are happy that I go to Skateistan, as they feel happy when I say about the skills I am learning here. I learned many lessons like life skills and sport. When I grow up I want to be the president of Afghanistan!

PROGRESS UPDATE 2017

In Cambodia, we continued to make our programs more accessible for children living with disabilities. Participation from this group was one of our priorities in 2017, alongside maintaining and increasing female participation. Our partnership with the school Krousar Thmey helped to increase enrolment of deaf children and our staff started to learn Khmer sign language.

In November, New Line Skateparks visited Phnom Penh to build a unique skate feature at Krousar Thmey. This was a welcome new addition to the school and allowed us to further cement our partnership with the school.

Late in 2017, we started the process of moving to a new location in Phnom Penh in order to reach more children through our programs. Our new location will better serve the needs of children in the city and will consist of a skatepark, classroom and office space. The design, build and eventual move to the new site was a great challenge for our Phnom Penh team. In November, we held a community event as a soft opening at the new location to introduce children and their families to our programs.

Specialists from New Line also worked on skate features at the new Skate School.

I had never skated before, so I asked permission from my mother and we organized things with Skateistan. Here I am learning how to skateboard and how to draw. At first, I felt nervous and sometimes I still am, but now I feel excited too! I have learned how to draw pictures and on a skateboard I have learned how to turn, stop, and drop-in from a ramp. Skateboarding is my favourite thing. When I grow up I want to be a policewoman!
SIHANOUKVILLE
CAMBODIA

PROGRESS UPDATE 2017

In Sihanoukville, we partnered with M’lop Tapang, a local organization that supports children at risk of substance abuse or human trafficking and survivors of exploitation or trafficking. In October 2017, we took part in a training exchange, with our staff learning how to support children struggling with addiction and M’lop Tapang staff learning how to run a skate program. As part of a team building activity, we helped to build two portable quarter pipes at M’lop Tapang.

The success of this partnership means that we can now focus on maintaining and expanding program partnerships with NGOs and government schools in and around Sihanoukville, and strengthening the management team’s professional capacity.
At M’Lop Tapang we believe every child has the right to play. We know that sports are not just a healthy way to have fun but can also help children build up their confidence and self-esteem. We are very proud to have Skateistan as a partner who, through skateboarding, has added a whole new dimension to the sports and recreation activities M’Lop Tapang offers to the children we work with. The local Cambodian staff at Skateistan have been great at making sure that all children, regardless of sex, age, or ability, have the chance to learn and to laugh.

M’lop Tapang
A highlight for the team in South Africa was the newly built Skate School in Johannesburg, where we welcomed over 150 new students in 2017. The new Homework Help component of our Back-to-School program proved to be very successful. Many students had highlighted the ongoing need for a quiet space to study, for more resources to help them with schoolwork, and the value of role models to help them with difficult classes. We equipped the Skate School classroom with a computer lab, quiet space, and a library with books and educational board games. Homework Help grew rapidly this year and proved very popular with students.

In Troyeville’s David Webster Park (where we first began running programs in South Africa), we continued with Outreach sessions once a week in 2017. We invested in establishing and maintaining partnerships with schools to reach new students. Both Miracle Eden Primary School and SPARK Schools Maboneng brought an average of 20 students for morning skate sessions each week. These skate sessions did not interfere with formal education but were part of the physical education classes.
My sister told me about skateboarding and so I became interested in it. Then I came to Skateistan to register with my brother. I think Skateistan is good because it has helped me improve more at school because of the homework help I am getting. I skate and I learn maths, and I do my homework. I have learned how to do skateboarding tricks, build houses and how to make floating cups. Skateboarding makes me feel better, happy and confident. I want to be a pilot when I’m older.
MONITORING, EVALUATION AND LEARNING

It is crucial to us that our programs are high-quality and that they are useful for the children and young people who take part in them. In 2017, we took steps to further strengthen our monitoring, evaluation and learning (MEL) system, as well as building up staff expertise in this area. This gives us relevant information about the impact of our programs, allows us to demonstrate their efficacy and to improve them where needed.

A major success during 2017 was relocating our student database and daily attendance monitoring to a cloud-based platform (Salesforce), which allows our staff around the world to collect real-time data. To better understand our impact, we used a combination of quantitative and qualitative data collection tools, including questionnaires and interviews for students and staff, focus groups, quality control checks, creative visual observations and class debriefs. We were then able to create a performance management plan which will guide our MEL work through 2018 and beyond.

Measuring areas of childhood development where there is no established framework remains a challenge. In March 2017, we joined forces with a consortium of eight international NGOs to form the ‘Action Impact Network’. This group worked together to develop a series of indicators and data collection tools to measure the impact of youth action sport for development programs.

We surveyed our programs staff as to the importance of MEL in the future development of programs. 80% said they believe it is very important to programs and 20% said they believe it is important.

> This way we are well connected with the students, their lessons and attendance. It helps us do our job in the best way possible.

Skateistan Afghanistan program staff member.

WORKING TOWARDS THE SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS:

Our sport and educational programs play an important role in working towards the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. The largest impact we make is through quality education, which alongside keeping more children in primary school and graduating from high school, is intrinsically linked with learning lifelong values of friendship, teamwork and inclusion.

Skateboarding as a physical activity promotes good health and well-being including mental well-being such as resilience, self-efficacy, self-esteem and trust, and teaching life-skills based education topics can help to prevent communicable diseases. By empowering girls and children with disabilities, we create leadership opportunities and a culture of non-violence to promote gender equality and reduced inequalities.

IN THE MEDIA

With the launch of our new website in May, in 2017 we focused on our online presence. We continued to expand our blog as a way of telling the stories of our programs and beneficiaries in more depth. We added the ‘Partner Profile’ feature to provide more information on successful partnerships with other organizations worldwide. Externally, we saw continued media interest in part thanks to new Citizen VIP supporters such as famous skater Sky Brown and pro-skater Nora Vasconcellos, as well as musician Santi White (Santigold). In November, we were delighted to release Land of Skate - a 13-minute documentary produced by Ghost Digital Cinema and directed by renowned filmmaker Ty Evans filmed on location in Afghanistan, Cambodia and South Africa. The film was released globally on Skateistan’s YouTube channel and resulted in over 34k views.

FUNDRAISING

In 2017, we raised our funds through a range of government, foundation and corporate partnerships, fundraising events and campaigns, and monthly donors worldwide. We further diversified our funding with support from the Jochnick Foundation and International Olympic Committee, and through new grants established with Comic Relief, the US Embassy in Kabul and the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation. Corporate supporters such as The Skateroom, InMaat Foundation, Third Point LLC, FYF Fest, Shining Pictures and CHPO provided generous support throughout the year. Many organizations and individuals held fundraisers such as Fauve Paris and Stockholm Skate Nation. We ran two successful fundraising campaigns, as well as winning the WeWork Creators Award.
We ran the Land of Skate fundraising campaign alongside the launch of the documentary from November 17th until the end of December. It was the highest quality content we had ever run for a campaign, with an Ultra High Definition documentary, social cuts of individual stories, Land of Skate artwork, branded Instagram stories and a website takeover. A special Facebook Live World premiere of the documentary, which was supported by Facebook, gave the public the chance to watch and donate live - a first of its kind. Overall this campaign raised over 103,000 USD, the most raised in a single campaign in our history.

Watch the film here.
The Citizens of Skateistan is our global community of students, staff, skaters, and monthly and VIP supporters who share our dream of empowering and educating children through skateboarding. In 2017, the Citizens of Skateistan community grew by around 100 members who all helped make it possible for thousands of young people to benefit from our programs worldwide.

Sometimes it just takes the discovery of one small window in someone’s world to reveal an entire universe that lies just beyond. For these children, Skateistan is that window. Whether it’s a few hours of shifted focus from whatever hardship exists in their daily lives, the pure fun of learning new tricks, or the self-confidence that is gained by their mastery, little by little a child’s spirit blooms. Skateistan creates a unique space where girls can skate and learn, sending a new message to its children about preconceived gender roles.

Santi White (Santigold), Musician, Citizen of Skateistan.

“I support Skateistan because they give children a safe and happy place to be. One of the most amazing things about Skateistan is almost half the kids that go are girls!”

Sky Brown, Skateboarder, Citizen of Skateistan.

“We support Skateistan because empowering youth with fun, joy, and community will make the educational aspects of the work more powerful and successful.”

Julia and Joe McMahon, Citizens of Skateistan.

“Skateistan is such a brilliant organization. It manages to do good for the children’s body, heart and mind. We are happy to support Skateistan because it brings joy, friendship and education to the lives of girls and boys.”

Franziska and Bruno Mancia, Citizens of Skateistan.
THE YEAR AHEAD

ACTIVITY PLAN FOR 2018

We will celebrate Skateistan’s 10th anniversary in 2018. It will be a year of Reaching Out, sharing what we have learned and building on 10 years of successes. In 2018, we will work to reach more children in more locations with high-quality skateboarding and education programs, through expansion and scaling projects and through a new knowledge-sharing initiative.

Lastly, we will explore opportunities to work in Jordan, aiming to open a new Skate School in the country in 2019-20.

In late 2017, we received a grant from WeWork to reach out to social skate projects worldwide with support and resources for the development of high-quality skateboarding and education programs for children. The new initiative is called the GoodPush Alliance, and will support three social skate projects in its first year. Through the GoodPush Alliance we will consolidate our knowledge and develop resources to share online.

Building further on the theme of Reaching Out, we will also provide opportunities for our diverse, multinational team to connect face-to-face and take part in staff capacity building and strategic planning for the next five years.

WHERE DOES THE MONEY COME FROM?

Our proportion of funding sourced from individual and corporate donors increased significantly in 2017. This was largely due to the major support from a collaboration with The Skateroom to support the construction of the new Skate School in Phnom Penh.

Government and foundations continue to be our biggest source of funding. Thanks to numerous partners, we could count on generous donations in kind to help with the construction of the Skate School in Phnom Penh as well as providing equipment to run programs in all locations.

The remaining funds held by our fundraising entities are held as reserves, to be used for future budget shortfalls or emergencies. Our ever-increasing fundraising capacity can be attributed to the fundraising staff at our headquarters in Berlin, in which we invested further last year.

Donations in kind are essential to further our work. The donations in kind we received in 2017 include pro bono services related to the construction of a new Skate School in Phnom Penh and to the documentary The Land of Skate. We also recognize equipment provided by donors which supports our programs.

We classify program costs as all expenditures relating to the projects in Afghanistan, Cambodia and South Africa, including media and technical support. Fundraising costs include fundraising salaries, fundraising overheads, fundraising drives and events, and direct communication with major donors. Management costs include administration salaries, head office running costs, compliance costs and audit fees.

The graphs summarizing revenue on the following page show only the amount of income that was transferred to our projects. Worldwide, our projects and fundraising entities raised over 473,500 USD from individuals and corporates (including support coming from the Land of Skate documentary and donations from Citizens of Skateistan).
